

Tech WEEK

Akira Arutaki of NCOS, Donal O'Mahony of CTVR, and John Hegarty of TCD

TCD announces partnership

The Trinity College Dublin-based Centre for Telecommunications Value-Chain Research (CTVR) has entered into a research partnership focused on the emerging area of all-optical networking with NEC Communication Systems (NCOS), part of Japanese technology giant NEC Group.

The partnership, which is supported by the Irish Research Council for Science, Technology and Engineering, will carry out research into the use of optical networks to facilitate faster, lower-cost internet connections in the future.